New Group Is For Jewish-Arab Equality In Palestine

Some time ago a number of well known people of Palestine felt that organized expression should be given to the main idea contained in Dr. Judah L. Magnes's article on Palestine and Arab union that was printed in periodicals there in June.

As an outcome of that idea a meeting of a hundred persons was held in Jerusalem last month upon the invitation of Professor Martin Buber of the Hebrew University, A. Goldwater, Dr. N. S. Hirsch; Henrietta Szold, an American woman; Julius Simon, president of the Palestine Economic Corporation of New York City; the Palestine Jewish farmers' leader, Moshe Smilansky, and Rabbi J. Unna, scholar.

Dr. Magnes addressed the meeting and as a result a provisional committee was elected to draw up a declaration that those wishing to join the new Union Association could accept.

The declaration shows the Union Association is not an anti-Zionist organization as some have asserted. It is, however, opposed to the present policy of the official Zionist leadership in advocating the establishment of Palestine as a Jewish State; but it is opposed equally to the establishment of Palestine as an Arab State.

The Union Association is convinced, its leaders say, that the problem of Palestine is inseparable from that of the Middle East and that the problem of the Middle East is inseparable from the question of a union of free peoples wherein America and England should play a leading part.

In the declaration of its objects and aims the Union Association [illegible] of which, [illegible] of the association are: Firstly, a government in Palestine based upon equal political rights of the two peoples; secondly, agreement of a steadily growing Palestine Jewry and the whole Jewish people to a federative union in Palestine and neighboring countries. This federative union should guarantee national rights of all people within it; thirdly, a covenant between the federative union and Anglo - American Union which would be part of a future union of free peoples. This union of free peoples will bear the ultimate responsibility for establishment of stability in international relations in the new world after the war.

"The association will co-operate with the existing League for Jewish-Arab Rapprochement containing representatives of organizations with varying points of view and is also prepared to co-operate with other organizations and groups."

Hope Abandoned For Jews In Nazi Fortress

Fifty thousand Jews from Germany and Czechoslovakia have been thrown into the fortress at Terezin and several thousand who are ill or charged with "criminal" acts are in underground dungeons where they are "dying like flies," a Czech Government spokesman said in London.

"All hope for them has been abandoned," the spokesman said, adding that Jewish leaders in the Czech protectorate had received [illegible] from the Nazis to prepare [illegible] for them.

[illegible] formerly in Prague only 15,000 remain. Pilsen and Brnoan have been cleared of Jews, he said, many of them being sent to Terezin, largest concentration camp in Nazi-controlled Europe.

A European observer said the Germans planned to exterminate the Jews, not only in Europe but throughout the world. He declared the Nazis had executed 2,000,000 Jews in the past three years and that hundreds of thousands of others had been deported from Germany, Poland, Czechoslovakia and other European countries.

U.S. Jews Living In Palestine Volunteer With British Forces

A large number of American Jews living in Palestine have volunteered for military service with the British armed forces in the Middle East, following an announcement that U.S. citizens can now enlist in the British forces without taking an oath of allegiance to the King. The Association of American citizens in Tel Aviv have forwarded a petition to the State Department in Washington asking for an extension of their permits to stay abroad another year in view of the existing travel difficulties.

The Times of London, in a dispatch from Jerusalem, ascribes importance to Palestine as a source of supply of manufactured articles required by the British army, and says that Palestine is contributing many thousands of trained troops and that two-thirds of the Palestinians who volunteered for the armed forces are Jewish.

Palestine shoe factories are filling a new order from the military authorities for the manufacture of 150,000 pairs of so called "Churchill" boots (a name given to Palestine made boots early this year). Deliveries will begin with 20,000 pairs a month and will rise to 40,000. Thus it is expected that the order will be completed within five months.

The capacity of the Palestine tanning and shoe industry and the supply of raw materials are adequate to meet the needs of the civilian population, in addition to taking care of the military requirements. According to figures recently published, the total consumption of shoes amounts to about a million pairs a year. Of this number, 700,000 pairs are purchased by Jews.

Shortly before he left for the [illegible] soldier, a Jewish unit [illegible] Jewish Agency [illegible] in the past ten years the amount [illegible] France before 1939.

A British broadcast said that eight Jesuit priests had been arrested at Lyon, France, for defying German demands for the surrender of several hundred Jewish and non-Jewish children sought by the Nazis for deportation.

The broadcast, heard over the Columbia Broadcasting System, said the priests first sheltered the children in their own homes and later transferred them to other hiding places.

An authorized source said that "no one and nothing can turn us from the policy of purging France of undesirable Jewish expatriates," but he added that the policy of separating children from their families would be abandoned and that entire families would be deported to the countries from which they came.

"It is a simple question of the purification of France of the unassimilable foreign Jews who clutter the black markets and engage in various anti-Petain and pro-de Gaulle campaigns and who some day we are sure to find at the heads of columns of rioters," the source said.

"These are troubled days and France cannot take the risk of allowing those who make trouble against order to stay here. We are solving the problem humanely. We want children to go with their parents, but we want foreign Jews arriving since 1936 to return to their European pre-war homes."

Reports from France stress that the Catholic prelates who have issued pastoral letters since the Vichy Government in a difficult position because they assume individual responsibility for their acts by insisting that the clergy add comment and though in veiled language they make it clear that the measures against Jews have been imposed on the Vichy Government by Germany.

French opinion, according to all accounts, is deeply stirred, for it realizes that local authorities are acting on orders from Vichy and that Marshal Henri Philippe Petain, the Chief of State, knows the facts. Most protests from clergymen are addressed to the Chief of State.

Each day brings its addition to protests made in France against the persecution of Jews. Texts have to be smuggled out of the country since publication is forbidden within it. Thus it was learned at Berne, Switzerland, that the Bishop of Montauban ordered the reading on Aug. 30 from all pulpits in his diocese "without comment" of a pastoral letter.

J. D. C. Grants $200,000 For Palestine War Relief

An extraordinary grant of $200,000 for war relief purposes in Palestine has been made by the Joint Distribution Committee, at the request of the Jewish Agency for Palestine and various Zionist organizations.

"The critical position of Palestine, a focal point in the Allied defense of the Near East," a statement issued by the Joint Distribution Committee declared, "has given rise to extraordinary relief requirements there. Although Zionist bodies in the United States and elsewhere continue to supply funds for Palestine, they have requested the Joint Distribution Committee to supplement relief funds contributed from abroad and raised locally. In the light of J.D.C.'s historical tradition, which is to bring help to suffering Jews overseas, in whatever quarter of the world they may be, we have not hesitated to make this grant.

"Despite the heavy demands which are being made on our funds from numerous quarters of Europe, Latin America and other areas, we of the Joint Distribution Committee recognize the vital necessity of upholding the hands of Palestinian Jews at this critical juncture. It will be recalled that the J.D.C.'s interest dates back to the last World War, when we conducted extensive relief operations there, cared for thousands of Jewish orphans, and were instrumental in founding modern central centres in cooperation with the Rockefeller Foundation and Hadassah."

In spite of the many other emergency programs, the statement pointed out, the Joint Distribution Committee has supplied hundreds of thousands of dollars annually ever since 1936 for the transportation of refugees from Europe to Palestine and for their vocational training in preparation for emigration. It has also made grants to the Hebrew University in Palestine, and to various religious-cultural institutions. Thus, since its inception in 1914, the Joint Distribution Committee has expended in various forms of emergency and cultural aid, child care, medical service, through its investments in the Palestine Economic Corporation, and for transportation of refugee emigrants to Palestine, a sum approaching approximately $13,000,000.

Vichy To Let Ousted Jews Take Children

A Vichy dispatch to the Zurich Zeitung quoted "informed circles" as saying that measures against foreign Jews in France would be modified. This statement said it was understood those affected would include German and Polish Jews or those without citizenship who went to France since 1933 and who have been convicted of black market activities.

French People Aiding Jews To Resist Seizure

According to reports from unoccupied France, both Catholic and Protestant leaders continue to deplore the intolerance toward Jews. Some of their public remarks have scarcely been veiled.

Prior to Chief of Government Pierre Laval's return to power it was common knowledge in France that, although on the statute books, anti-Semitic legislation was applied only half-heartedly. Rabid anti-Semites such as Jacques Doriot, frequently took the government to task in consequence.

The attitude of the churches is expected to present a problem for Marshal Henri Philippe Petain. Religion has a large part in his program for the renovation of France, and its application entails the support of the churches.

Foreigners, particularly Jews, are reminded in a notice published in Vichy that they may not leave their homes without special permission.

The press also republished an article from the Grand Echo du Midi, published in Toulouse, drawing attention to the emotion caused in certain circles by the recent concentration of Jews for expulsion from the unoccupied zone, where they had taken refuge. The article reviews the attitude of the Catholic Church toward the Jewish question, recalling that St. Thomas forbade Christians to associate with Jews and that the Star of David is of ecclesiastical origin.

"More than ever," the article declares, "each citizen must be prudent and reserved as to his speech and acts. It is in no way forbidden to commiserate the misery of one's fellows, but every Frenchman should beware of any provocation and [illegible] from [illegible] followed to support a movement that can gravely compromise the work of Marshal Petain."

The Vatican, through the Papal Nuncio to Vichy, Mgr. Valerio Valeri, repeated its past appeals to the Vichy government for tolerance for the Jews, but Marshal Henri Philippe Petain, the Chief of State, and the chief of government, Pierre Laval, expressed inability to resist the German demands.

Police carried out mass arrests of 13,000 foreign Jews in unoccupied France for deportation to labor camps in German-controlled eastern Europe, but the French people are aiding the Jews to resist seizure.

The deportation order, which applied to all Jews who had entered France since 1933, provoked a near panic in the Riviera, where many of the foreign Jews had concentrated in an effort to get as far away from Germany as possible. At least five suicides have been reported.

The roundup began Aug. 26 at the command of the Germans, but at the same time began arrests of 30,000 foreign Jews in the occupied zone. Reports of the arrests in the unoccupied zone have been mentioned only briefly in the French press, and not at all in the newspapers of unoccupied France.

In some cases French officials have defended Jewish families from the police with spirited [illegible] Jews have barricaded themselves in their homes or fled to the mountains and forests.

As a result, [illegible] 12,000 have been [illegible]

"Secondly, the Union Association therefore regards a union between the Jewish and Arab people as essential for building up Palestine and for meeting its basic problems. It will strive for co-operation between the Jewish world and Arab world in all branches of life—social, economic, cultural and political—thus making for revival of the whole Semitic world.

The settlement Ayeleth Hashachar in Upper Galilee has begun the manufacture of soap from milk, producing half a ton a month. The manufacturing process, due to the use of simple methods, requires a small investment. The settlement also makes its own shaving soap, toothpaste, and shoe polish.

The fur industry in Palestine, although in its infancy, already employs some 250 workers. The annual turnover amounts to $200,000.00. Two-thirds of the furs are exported abroad; mainly to Iraq, Egypt, and Syria. Palestine also boasts of three dyeing plants.

Joseph Seidner, veteran of the Hibbath Zion movement and a collaborator of Dr. Theodor Herzl, who recently died in Tel Aviv at the age of 82, was employed as an irrigation engineer. He visited Palestine for the first time 51 years ago on a mission for the Chovevei Zion Society of Ekaterinaslav, Russia. Later he joined Dr. Herzl in founding the Zionist Organization and established the first Zionist paper "Die Welt". In 1908 he accompanied Dr. Herzl to Palestine. He settled there in 1921 when he founded the Silicate Brick factory.

According to the daily "Haaretz", Tel Aviv will shortly have for the first time in its history an Arab magistrate. He is Abu Kaoud of Jaffa, and is well versed in Hebrew.

The financial position of the Citrus Cooperative Societies has undergone considerable improvement and it is expected that they will successfully emerge from the financial straits in which they found themselves at the beginning of 1941. At the end of March, 1941, the societies owed local banks about 400,000 pounds. This debt has now been reduced to less than 250,000 pounds.

The army has taken 110 cases of oranges. Some 40,000 tons of lemons and oranges have been used in the manufacture of acid oil. Other factories have used about 16,600 tons of fruit for jams and juices. The amount of fruit shipped to Syria and Lebanon was 6,700 tons while 1,100 tons were sent to Iraq and additional shipments also went to more distant territories.

FRENCH PEOPLE AIDING JEWS TO RESIST SEIZURE

fused, but in four regions Toulouse, Limoges, Lyons and Montpellier, only 3,787 Jews out of 7,129 were found.

Dispatches to the Swiss press said the Bishop Allegre of Toulouse had denounced Jewish persecution. In a pastoral letter read last Sunday from all pulpits in the city, he said:

"In the concentration camps of Noe and Recebedou in our diocese horrible things are happening against the Jews, who are human beings like we are. Every imaginable cruelty is permitted against them. There are rights of man which should not be violated.

"Jewish children, women and men are treated like cattle.

"Why isn't there any longer the old sacred right of asylum in our churches? I am convinced it is not really France who is responsible for these frightful atrocities."

U. S. Protests Vichy Deportation Of Jews

The State Department has made the "most vigorous representations possible" to the French Government through the American Embassy in Vichy over the mass deportation of Jews from unoccupied France, it was announced by the American Jewish Committee.

The protest followed representations by four Jewish organizations, and the action was communicated to them in a letter by Sumner Welles, Under-Secretary of State.

Secretary Hull manifested strong interest in the deportations in response to questions at his press conference and indicated that a protest was in order. The department felt so strongly over such inhuman measures, he said, that it was scarcely necessary for organizations to bring them to its attention.

According to the Jewish organizations, the American Jewish Committee, the American Jewish Congress, the Bnai Brith and the Jewish Labor Committee, about 10,000 Jewish refugees, who had sought asylum in unoccupied France, have been loaded on trains under brutal and heart-breaking conditions and sent to Eastern Europe without any word about their destination. Many of the refugees had been in France for several years and had been interned as aliens at the outbreak of the war.

Although the Nazis have long been deporting Jews from Germany and from territories under their control since the conquest of Poland, it was pointed out, this is the first time they have applied the policy in a country which they have not occupied and with which the United States is maintaining diplomatic relations. The deportees have been sent to Eastern Europe, where they have been forced to live under indescribably wretched conditions and in many cases have been victims of brutal mass murders, it was declared.

COMBINED JEWISH APPEAL

The Jewish General Hospital, Jewish Refugee and War Relief Agencies, Jewish War Efforts Committee and Canadian Jewish Congress congratulate the Federation of Jewish Philanthropies on its Silver Jubilee, and are proud to join with Federation in the Combined Jewish Appeal.

This year marks the completion of twenty-five years of humanitarian service to Montreal by Federation, the first federation of charitable organizations in the Dominion of Canada. Over these years a record of steady growth and progress has been maintained.

Now, a further forward step in welfare history has been achieved in the Combined Jewish Appeal which embraces five entirely separate organizations for the purpose of fund raising.

The association of these separate bodies meets with the wish of the Government for the consolidation of civilian welfare campaigns, to clear the way for patriotic appeals. It is designed also to save campaigning expenses and the time of workers and givers alike.

Maintenance costs are up. The need is more urgent than ever. Give adequately . . . give proportionately.

If ¾ or more of your income comes from salary or wages, you must file your 1942 Income Return by 30th September 1943. If your income is not over $5,000, including not over $100 from investments, you will use Form T1-Special; otherwise you will use Form T.1.

3. Question: WHEN AND HOW IS YOUR TAX COLLECTED?

Answer: Your employer is required by law to make deductions from your salary or wages on account of your 1942 tax during the period September 1942 to August 1943. Each deduction must be the amount provided by the official Table of Tax Deductions for your current rate of pay, and family status and personal savings as declared on Form TD-1 (Item 2 above).

The Table is designed to collect about 90% of the tax on your salary or wages, leaving a balance of not more than 10%, in most cases, (plus tax on your other income, if any) to be paid with your Income Return to be filed in September 1943.

If your salary or wages are less than ¾ of your income, you must pay tax on your other income by compulsory instalments. (See Part II below)

4. Question: WHAT CONSTITUTES TAXABLE INCOME?

Answer: Your income is made up of your full salary or wages before any deductions whatsoever, plus living allowances, gratuities or bonuses (including cost of living bonus) and the value of any board, living quarters or supplies, etc., given you by your employer. It also includes such receipts as interest and dividends, rents (after taxes, repairs, etc.), royalties and annuities. From your total income you deduct payments (up to $300) into certain types of employees' superannuation or pension funds, charitable donations up to 10% of your income, and medical expenses over 5% of your income (maximum—$400 single, $600 married, plus $100 for each dependent up to four), to find the amount of your taxable income.

5. Question: HOW MUCH DO YOU PAY?

Answer: (A) Normal Tax—(whichever rate is applicable is applied to the full amount of your taxable income from the first to the last dollar).

A booklet entitled
"YOUR 1942 INCOME TAX"
will be available shortly at offices of Inspectors of Income Tax.

(3) Dependents—tax credit for each—up to $80

(C) Surtax—4% on investment income over $1500 without exemptions.

NOTES

(1) In no case are you required to pay a net tax (i.e., after credit for dependents) which would reduce your taxable income below $660 single or $1200 married.

(2) If a wife has unearned income over $660, then both she and her husband are taxable as single persons, but any amount a wife earns does not affect her husband's right to be taxed as a married person. A married woman is taxed as a single person under all circumstances except only when her husband's income is less than $660.

(D) Tax Credit for Personal Savings—
You may deduct from the savings portion of your tax (Item 6) 1942 payments on account of—
(1) an approved employees' (or trade union) superannuation, retirement or pension fund;
(2) premiums on life insurance policies issued prior to 23rd June 1942 (if issued after that date ask your insurance company or Inspector of Income Tax);
(3) annuity or savings policies not postponable without substantial loss or forfeiture; and
(4) principal payments on a mortgage or agreement of sale, existing prior to 23rd June, 1942, on one residential property; provided (a) they do not exceed the savings portion and (b) receipts are produced for the payments when filing your Income Return.

(E) National Defence Tax—
This tax does not apply after 31st August, 1942. The deductions made during January to August 1942 apply as a payment on account of your 1942 tax.

6. Question: HOW MUCH OF YOUR TAX IS SAVINGS?

Answer:
(1) Single—the lesser of
(a) ½ the total of your Normal Tax, Graduated Tax and Surtax, or
(b) 8% of your taxable income (maximum $100) plus 1% for each dependent (maximum $100 for each).

(2) Married (or equivalent status)—the lesser of
(a) ½ the total of your Normal Tax, Graduated Tax and Surtax; or
(b) 10% of your taxable income (maximum $1000) plus 1% for each dependent (maximum $100 for each).

You will get back the savings portion of your tax which you actually pay, plus 2% interest, after the war.

A Yom Kippur Day For All The World

The Day of Atonement is the holiest observance in the calendar of the synagogue. From ancient times to this, our own day, it has been the messenger of reconciliation and peace; of forgiveness, confession, and atonement of sins. How urgently meaningful is this holy day for us who live in this time of terror and cosmic raging floods of hatred and passion.

The world has no such day as Yom Kippur. I would to heaven it were possible for all peoples to observe a Yom Kippur day; that for one day the war machines would all cease their death-dealing activities and that the people of the earth could gather in their respective places of worship for self-inquiry, for truly genuine, humble searching of soul, for an honest examination of their way of life, their conduct. How sublime would such a Yom Kippur world observance prove in helping usher in a victory of the spirit for the establishment of a just peace such as the waging of war can never achieve.

Jewish mystics speak of the battleground of the soul, the war within the heart of every human being. Thus we have our own war, the war between our desires and duties: the war between the Yetzer Hora and the Yetzer ha-Tov, between the evil and good inclinations. Yom Kippur summons the individual to victorious soul living. It bids us master selfishness, greed. It calls upon us to vivify our souls with compassion and truth.

The wise sage declared: By mercy and truth is iniquity purged (Prov. 16:6). Sin is a reality. Its yoke can be cast aside. For in the domain of the spirit the Ethiopian can change his skin and the leopard his spots. We re-assert that sin is real, for in modern times the tendency has been to ignore sin's reality and explain it away with scientific terminology and thus speak of sin as a kind of illness to be treated tenderly. Moral inhibitions were often ignored and instincts made the guideposts of life. The Jew confesses "Chotonu", we have sinned, and thus, by this confession, declares that the heart of man and society at large have their battlefields of good and evil.

Today, because of the cruelty of our times, the world is rediscovering sin. We no longer think comfortably of human nature as did the generations flushed by science and education. Jewish teaching is therefore in good fashion and not out of date in stressing the word sin. The gifts of science we have converted into instruments of the destruction of life. What is this if not sin? Is there not something demonic in nature, that we can use the best for the worst? Yes, we are an educated people. Education has helped our intelligence, but when human nature has no moral discipline and is merely given education then a strange combination often takes place. High intelligence is combined with low desires and the worst calamities fall upon society as a result of this powerful combination.

Human nature needs a constant, powerful spiritual renewal. The rich and the poor, the wise and the simple folk must ever strive for that spiritual renewal in order that goodness may be the master. This is the purpose of the Kippur Day for us moderns.

In this age of cruelty the proclamation of the sage that lovingkindness can serve as one means of atonement is most significant. Chesed, mercy, is primary in Jewish teaching. Callousness is among the chief sins of our day. This is evidenced by the widespread inhumanity and savagery which have come to predominate.

It was Israel, classic Israel, that gave so much emphasis to the sentiment of mercy in its holy codes. The Jewish heart has ever been motivated thus by unbounding sympathy. We Jews, because of centuries of suffering, have as our mission to be the eternal sympathizers with all humankind. In a world suffering from the sins of callousness, tyranny, and cruelty, the Jew, in line with the noble Yom Kippur tradition, must be the daily practitioner and proclaimer of lovingkindness and universal love. It is not without reason that classic Israel has been named "Rachmonim bnei Rachmonim."

Deeds of lovingkindness can be humble in kind and often the humbler the deed the grater the worth. The Yiddish writer, Isaac Loeb Peretz, tells a remarkable story to illustrate this thought of the worth of even the humble act of kindness:

In the town of Nemirov it used to be said that the Rabbi flew up to heaven during the High Holyday season. It happened that a Litvack came to town. Now Litvacks are notorious skeptics and this one refused to believe what he considered an old wives' tale. He determined to find out for himself where the Rabbi disappeared to. One night he got into the Rabbi's bedroom, hid himself under the bed, and patiently waited. Early in the morning he saw the Rabbi rise, put on peasant's clothing, pick up an axe and go out toward a nearby wood. He followed him stealthily, and saw him come up to a young tree, strike it down, split it into logs and splinters, bind them into a bundle, put the bundle over his shoulder, and turn back to the city. The Rabbi then walked up to the wretched hovel of a sick widow. Speaking in the peasant tongue, he offered her wood for sale. The widow protested she had no money. "Foolish creature", the Rabbi answered her. "See here: you are a poor, sick Jewess, and I am willing to trust you with the little bundle of wood. I believe that in time you will repay me. And you, you have such a great and mighty God, and you do not trust Him! Not even to the amount of a miserable six grochen for a little bundle of wood?"

"And who is to light the stove?" groans the widow. "I am sick and my son is away at work."

"I will also light the stove for you," said the Rabbi. He proceeded to do it as he hummed under his breath bits from the Kol Nidre.

Ever since that day when the Litvack heard people say that the Rabbi of Nemirov goes up to heaven during the High Holyday season, he added quietly, "If not higher!"

Deeds of kindness purge our sins. And what is more, the law of love must be practiced by us in our dealings with those who have stumbled and are to be brought back to a life of virtue.

Truth is another helpful measure in cleansing us from sin, so teaches the wise man in the Book of Proverbs. The Hebrew word "Ovon" primarily means crookedness. A sinful thing is a crooked thing. Repentance calls for honest confession to avow the truth. Our age is in great need for reverencing of truth. In a world of scientific propaganda, the lie has become a powerful instrument in the tearing down of society and decent human relationships. If only nations and individuals would truthfully face the facts of their own sinful indulgences and admit shortcomings, the hope for civilization's recovery from its present downfall could take on quickened steps of reality. The world would not for long remain degraded. In a world when the sin of falsehood is dominant, Yom Kippur calls for sincerity. That the world may truly repent, it must first rediscover truth in individual and national strivings.

Does the Day of Atonement can be an imperative influence in our lives. This day should now be observed by Jews and non-Jews alike so that all mankind might find a purification of soul especially from the sin of cruelty and the sin of falsehood which have converted civilized life into a jungle. Repent ye sincerely! Repent ye by practicing the universal law of love. This is the primary summons of Yom Kippur to the children of men.

Lord God, see —
See Thou our heart's contrition,
And bow Thine ear,
Hear, O hear, the voice of petition.
Banish our fear,
Blot out our evil ways,
Open the door of grace,
Bid us enter there!

That for what it cost me to be free,
I might have had an anchor."

It is bad form for a columnist to refer in public print to personal ailments and tribulations. All the same, and perhaps in the interest of science, it should be made a matter of record that last week this column had a temperature of a hundred and fifteen degrees. No doctor was called in because by the time one could have arrived the crisis was over and doctors, being a hard lot, overly-conservative and unadventurous beyond the limits of the textbook, would have been inclined to scoff at a fever hitherto unheard of, as a claim supported by inferior evidence. However, this column's passionate attachment to the truth is well known and it is not going to recede a fifth of a degree from the hundred and fifteen. Anyway, it felt like that much temperature, and that's all there is to it.

The cause of this disturbance was the rotogravure sections of the Rosh Hashonah number of the Review and the rising generation. These pages, affecting the various members of the Review staffs in Toronto and Montreal in various ways, might be called for them the Jewish problem, at least of the moment. For some the acute point is the influx of children's pictures over and above the obvious amount of space there is for reproducing them in one issue. One assistant may begin to wear a trapped look as the photographs mount up and will mutter darkly to herself how she is going to leave town on a certain date, the one on which the Review is to be delivered. And not come back until. Another may just suddenly go off into hysterical gales of laughter needing no explanation by now. Some plan naive but effective subterfuges like not answering the telephone for two weeks.

After all, the late Saito, tiny Japanese ambassador to Washington, when he used to find inquiries getting too thick and involved around him, would go into the silence and draw little pictures with pencil on a paper pad. This column's way is usually to leave the world completely and drop back into some other and cooler period of history, preferably the golden age for Jews in Spain, to play some glittering role that has nothing to do with the complications of special issues. However, that hardly seemed adequate for certain aspects of last week.

Lyman Abbott once wrote: "If you can look back upon exigencies in life when you have faced a real danger, you can bear witness that the lions are always chained." Yes, indeed, but that is only in retrospect, and at the critical time the lions do not ever look to be restrained. And as the parent of what used to be commonly referred to as a gorgeous baby, this column knows very well what mother love means. It means that every child is beautiful and wonderful, and no one can deny that; and his or her picture is going to be in the brown pages of the Review, which is not always possible. It sometimes has to wait.

This column's first protective thought was the winding crank at the end of the auxiliary fuel behind the barn, whether to cover it over like an air raid shelter or to submerge it it like a submarine. Then came the present help in time of trouble, divine inspiration in the thought of approaching Succoth, season of gladness, the feast of the tabernacles, when Jews place their trust not in arsenals or armor but in the protection of the Lord. They are supposed to live then for seven days in booths and these booths are made deliberately flimsy of construction to show that it is not by might but by right that civilization will prevail in the end, and to teach as Philo says, "equality, the first principle and beginning of justice," with all men living at the same standard of well-being.

Only the faithless and the chicken-hearted would place ultimate dependence upon mere physical security. Shammai, when he made a succah for his newborn grandson simply laid bare the rafters over the mother's bed and covered them with boughs. The succah has been built through the ages with only a thatched roof or one of branches, allowing the sun and the stars to shine through. The succah is splendid and sophisticated or not; the building material is only of palm branches or orange trees or willows or anything like that; and the decorations may be garlands, wreaths, fruits, wine bottles, festoons, choice curtains and tapestries, all of which is easily destructible. Even the succah that Queen Helena of Adiabene, a convert to Judaism about the year 30, built herself at Lydda, which was all of twenty cubits high, did not suggest a fortress.

It is not the succah but you who must be strong! Thinking this over deeply, this column selected a natural succah as an escape. Most of it is a huge, curving clump of Canadian bamboo, dripping with vine-like stems and clusters of white flowers, easy to demolish but offering perfect concealment. So far nothing untoward has happened, and this column may live to see that all pictures appear in the paper in due course of time.

Agricultural Achievements In Palestine

They Have Refuted Gloomy Prophecies Of Skeptics And Surpassed Friendly Expectations

By Dr. Arthur Ruppin, Professor Of Jewish Sociology At The Hebrew University In Palestine

The third period (1931-40) covers the acquisition and the establishment of settlements over larger stretches of land in the coastal plain (e.g., Emek Hefer, Emek Acre), in the Beisan district and in upper Galilee. The number of settlements reached 257 and the population 142,000, of whom 70,000 lived by farming; the area amounted to 1,570,000 dunams.

Interesting is the acceleration in the tempo of colonization to be seen from the figures mentioned above. The average yearly increase in the agricultural population rose during the period 1882-1900 by 170 persons; 1900-22 by 320 persons; 1922-31 by 2,000 persons; and 1931-40 by 3,700 persons.

This increase is characteristic not only of colonization in Palestine but also of that in other countries. In the beginning, until the settlers have collected the necessary experience and adapted themselves to the climatic conditions, agricultural settlement can progress but slowly. But until these difficulties have been overcome is any substantial and rapid development possible. The average yearly increase of 3,700 persons in the period, 1931-40, does not by any means represent the peak of this development and may be considerably exceeded during the course of the next decades.

This favorable prognosis is based in the first instance on the fact that during recent years the quest for new water supplies was crowned with undreamed of successes. It seems almost certain that the amount of water available for irrigation can serve four or five times the 400,000 dunams cultivated today. Secondly, the increase of population (3,300,000 at the end of 1940 as compared to 1,000,000 in 1931 and 783,000 in 1922), has greatly enlarged the local market for agricultural products. Thirdly, many new crops have been introduced (ground nuts, potatoes, sub-tropical trees, medicinal plants, etc.), which were formerly unknown or rare in Palestine.

Detailed statistical data available for settlements founded by the Zionist Organization from Keren Hayesod funds show that their number in September 1940 was 134, consisting of 79 kvutzoth and 55 moshavei ovdim. These settlements covered an area of 390,000 dunams and had a population of nearly 40,000.

A very marked increase in the output of all settlements has been recorded in the last three years. Receipts from the sale of milk, dairy products, eggs, poultry, vegetables and fruit of the 134 Keren Hayesod settlements, which sell their produce through T'nuvah, the co-operative marketing organization, have increased from £P141,586 in 1930-31 to £P1,056,000 in 1940-41.

T'nuvah sales, however, form only part of the total earnings of these settlements. In addition, income is derived from the sale of such products as grain and fodder (marketed chiefly through the Hamashbir Hamerkazi [Co-operative Wholesale Society]), oilseeds, citrus fruits, figs, part of the banana crop, etc. In 1939-40, income from these products amounted to £P321,000, while industries and handicrafts operated by the settlements accounted for £P284,000. Finally, £P346,000 was earned through outside work (wages, cultivation contracts, transport, etc.). The total revenue of the 134 Keren Hayesod settlements for 1939-40 thus reached £P1,847,000. Their assets, it should be noted, had a total value of £P4,535,000, according to the latest annual report of the Workers Bank in Tel Aviv.

The progress of Jewish agricultural settlement has both refuted the gloomy prophecies of the skeptics and opponents, and surpassed the expectations of its friends. It has provided conclusive proof of the qualities of the Jew as a pioneer colonist and of the feasibility of large-scale Jewish agricultural resettlement on economically productive foundations.

The success of the Palestine settlements is not accidental. It has its roots in specific underlying factors which distinguish Palestine settlement from similar ventures elsewhere. For one thing, it derives its motive power from the high national ideal of the reconstruction of a Jewish homeland, which has been the source of that inspiration and enthusiasm without which the initial difficulties, hardships and disappointments of pioneering could not have been surmounted.

The Jewish pioneer settler in Palestine knew that toil and sacrifice, not profit or comfort, would be his lot. Fired by devotion to an ideal, he was determined to stick through thick and thin to his task, even if from the purely material point of view it represented the most difficult and least profitable of the occupations he might have chosen. This devotion continues to be the prime condition for progress in the future.

The growth of a sturdy and devoted second generation is perhaps the most valuable of the results of Jewish settlement. Their upbringing is designed to make them familiar with and attached to agricultural life, and by the time they reach sixteen they are much better trained and equipped for farm life than their parents. The rise of this second generation justifies high hopes of even greater achievements in the future than have been secured by the present pioneer farmers. It must be mentioned, however, that their upbringing and education represents a heavy financial burden. As a result, the birth rate in the settlements is comparatively low, and two children is usually about all the settler can afford. Consideration should therefore be given to the question of special contributions from the central institutions which would help shoulder part of the expense in raising larger families.

In conclusion it may be said that perhaps the greatest asset acquired by Jewish settlement is the vast pioneering and agricultural experience which it has accumulated. Jewish agricultural settlement in Palestine has definitely emerged from the experimental stage, and it may look forward with confidence to future progress and growth.
